A Recent Testimonial from our Guests 15 May 2010

When my daughter decided to marry her Iranian fiancé in Istanbul we were told by family & friends that it would be a simple, straightforward procedure - all we needed were a few necessary documents, such as passport & birth certificates, and the rest would be easy!

Thank goodness we didn't listen! We had no idea of the potential pitfalls, particularly with a mixed nationality marriage. If it weren't for Murat, at Travel Atelier & Turkey Weddings, I doubt that the wedding would have taken place at all, never mind going as smoothly as it did.

Murat was truly wonderful! He was in Istanbul for the whole five days we were there, either physically with us, or just a phone call away. I think he hardly slept the whole time - if he wasn't taking my daughter and her fiancé around Istanbul organising appointments with the Iranian Embassy, the UK Embassy, the Governor's Office, the Registrar etc (all of which required the correct paperwork and translations to be in place), then he was escorting them to a local hospital for the medical checks (required under Turkish law).

There were a couple of queries over some of the documents, which he sorted out for us - we wouldn't have known where to start! Then of course there were the arrangements - flowers, cake, food, wine, hair, makeup, photographer.....!

He was there for the whole process, including the setting up and moving everything around for the evening. He made sure we had two options, depending on the weather, and cheerfully had everything re-arranged at the very last minute as the sun broke through! We were staying at the hotel where the wedding was to take place (beautiful - found by Murat !) and he was considerate enough to think of having all the flowers sent to our rooms in the hotel after the wedding, so that we would continue to enjoy them for the rest of our stay.

Right down to the last detail - organising our transfer to the airport for our return trip, and having the driver wait until we had checked in, in case of problems - he couldn't have done a better job! The day was so special and unique. Murat - Thank You from all of us!
